

National 9/11 Memorial Museum

The National 9/11 Memorial Museum serves as the country's principal institution for examining the events of September 11, 2001, documenting the impact of those events and exploring the continuing significance of the day.

The Museum's exhibition space is located within the archaeological heart of the World Trade Center site – telling the story through multimedia displays, archives, narratives and a collection of monumental and authentic artifacts.

The lives of every victim of the 2001 and 1993 attacks will be commemorated as visitors have the opportunity to learn about the men, women, and children who died through artifacts which provide a link to the events of September 11, 2001.
